

The Division of Computer Studies has organized a three-day study tour to the GuangZhou University to provide laboratory practice for students studying the Associate of Science in Environmental Studies (AScES). Forty-five students have attended the laboratories from 20 to 22 December.

The tour helps AScES students to practice the chemistry and environmental laboratories in an educational and professional setting. Students can apply the learnt skills in the environmental courses and enjoy the school life in the University of China.

Group photo taken outside the biochemistry laboratory building.

Instructor of GuangZhou University provides assistance for our students.

Students collect the water samples for experiments use.

Students use the laboratory equipments to measure the chemical.

Students attend the laboratory briefing.

Students enjoy the study tour and take the bus back to Hong Kong.

GUANGZHOU UNIVERSITY LABORATORY TOUR 2012