Seoul Study Tour 2011

To provide students a better understanding in the development of aviation, logistics, engineering, and information technologies of our neighboring regions, and provides an opportunity for students from different programmes to share their knowledge from the operations and customer services and from the engineering perspectives, 29 students from Associate of Science of Airport Operations and Aviation Logistics (AScAOAL) and 2 students from Associate of Engineering (AENG) participated into a study tour to visit Seoul from 16 to 20 May 2011. Seoul is one of the closest competitors to Hong Kong in the aviation and logistics industries, as well as a pioneer in engineering and technology development.

This tour was led by Dr. Kenny Ma (Programme Leader of AScAOAL) and Dr. Timothy Kwong (Year Tutor of AScAOAL). This study tour was sponsored by the College Quality Campus Life Fund of the Community College of City University, and the Division of Computer Studies.
